

Section SX

The numbering in this section takes two forms. For the eastern section, in four rows the graves have been numbered sequentially. For the western part five rows have numbers qualified by a row letter. An area by the western wall has been set aside for cremated remains and currently (2015) has two memorials.

Onetime city councillor Brian Hamlen, who was mayor in 1980 and an honorary alderman, died unexpectedly on Sunday. He was also treasurer of the city's Aix-en-Provence Twinning Association, and a former president of the Bath West Rotary Club. Mr Hamlen had been deputy chairman (political) of Bath Conservative Association, and was a past chairman and former leader of the old city council. He masterminded the party's last local and general election campaigning in the city, and the association's immediate past chairman Councillor Tony Clarke said he had "encyclopaedic knowledge" of the constituency. "He was an invaluable member of the association and was well-liked and well-respected by colleagues." Association chairman Paul Buckley said: "His wise counsel and sound judgement will be greatly missed." Mr Hamlen, who was married to Mary, had two children, Liz and Anthony, and four grandchildren.
