Introduction

This document contains transcriptions of the inscriptions of memorials at the church of All Saints, Corston near Bath.

It is based on a survey carried out in late 2016 and the transcription of the burial registers from 1766 to present. The 20th-century burial registers include, for some entries, the location of the grave and this has been used as the basis for the numbering.

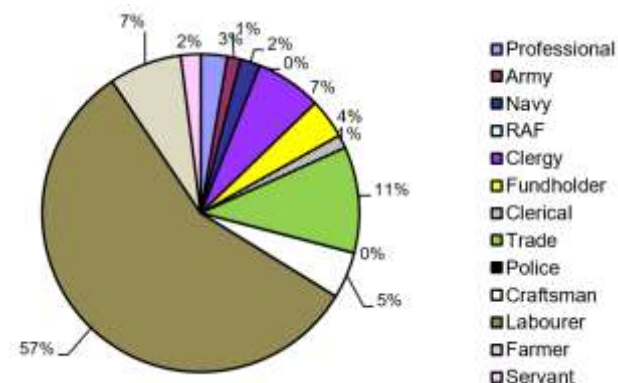

Most of the surviving memorials in the churchyard are from the 20th century with only a few from previous centuries.

Burials per year

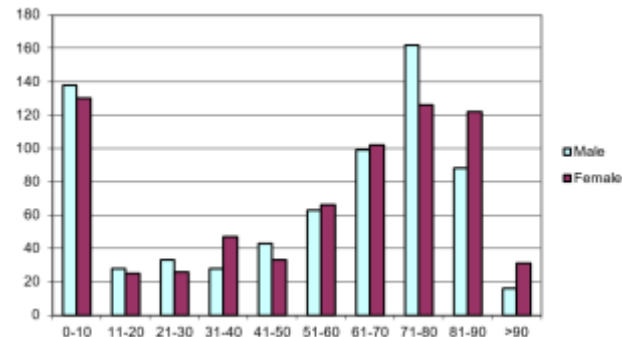

The number of burials per years was mainly between 6 and 8. In 1837 there were 19 burials, possibly reflecting the effect of the influenza epidemic that year, something that is evident in other parishes in the area. Current burials are mainly of ashes with the memorial being a plaque. There are some plaques here there is no corresponding entry in the burial register.

The occupations have been determined for 16% of those buried. The profile of types of occupation reflect the agricultural basis of the local economy - with people working on the farms and market gardeners.

Occupation profile

Ages were only routinely in a burial entry from 1813 when the statutory registers included a column for this. 19% of those buried were aged under 11 and 39% were aged over 70. This is better than some of the poorer areas of Bath where over 40% were aged under 11.

Age profile

The birth country has been determined for about 35% of the individuals. 96% were born in England and 2.6% in Wales.

There are 272 memorials in the churchyard for 1643 burials from 1766 to present. Areas to the north and south of the church are sparsely populated with memorials. The main area where there are memorials are in the western and south-western parts of the churchyard.

While there are some wall memorials inside the church, there are no ledger stones. The church dates from Norman times but has undergone rebuilding in the 13th century and the tower has a stone with 1622 on it. In 1865 there were major changes to the church through the addition of a northern aisle, the roof changed from a flat one to a pitched one and replacement of the seating. Seven flat stones by the north-eastern corner of the church would seem to have been originally ledger stones from inside the church. Some of these, dating from the 1700s, were for the Har[r]ington family, originally from Kelston who also owned land at Corston.

Notable People

Richard Crawshay Hall (1804-1884) (grave A.8.10)
Son of an MP. He lived for time at Corston and then at Freshford Hall. A memorial in the church records that he left a bequest for “the old necessitous and deserving poor”.

Hubert Alastair Campbell-Hill (1914-1994) (grave B.2.1a)
Published an account of his time as a prisoner-of-war of the Japanese.

Bevan Graham Horstmann (1908-1998) (grave B.2.1b)

A member of the Horstmann family of engineers and one of the directors of the Horstmann Gear Company.

Ronald Dewhurst Wills (1891-1937) (grave B.2.4).

A member of the Wills family of tobacco magnates. A local philanthropist associated with the YMCA and the Wessex Orthopaedic Hospital.

Samuel Ryles (1741-1813) (grave B.3.7).

Ran a livery stable and riding school in Monmouth Street, Bath. This expanded to provide equestrian-based entertainment.

John Salmon (1762-1845) (grave B.10.2).

Clerk of the Quay for Bath with business at Broad Quay.

Hugh Leslie Owen Thompson (1931-1996) (grave C.2)

Having joined the Royal Navy as an engineer artificer rating rose to become Vice-Admiral Engineering. Instituted a prize for Mathematics.

David James Simpson (1798-1867) (grave D.7)

Paymaster-in-chief for the Royal Navy.

Giles Hall (1779-1852) (grave F.25).

Paper manufacturer with a mill at Rickford, Blagdon (Som).

John Collibee Horton (1767-1841) (grave F.26)

A member of the Horton family of Bath. His mother was daughter of Edward Bushell Collibee. The families owned much land in and around Bath.

Friedrich Ludwig Bartelt (1852-1924) (grave F.29).

Originally from Prussia he ran a soap manufacturing factory. He founded the Polysulphin Chemical and Soap Works, which was first at Brislington and then Keynsham. It made soap for laundries. He also developed a biplane-like machine with beating wings (the 'Bartelt Ornithopter') which was exhibited at the Olympia Aero Show in March 1911. He had a patent for an 'apparatus for washing linen' and for a soap-less 'washing and bleaching compound' (based on zinc sodium hydroxide and silicates).

Mary Swatten (1793-1846) (grave F.40)

A servant to a Mrs Milsom of Pierrepont Street, Bath. The lengthy inscription alludes to having disappeared and been found drowned in the Avon.

Benjamin Montague (1758-1840) (grave G.1.15)

A perfumer and stationer with a shop opposite the Pump Room, Bath. He developed the business to also include tobacco and snuff.

John Enraght (1701-1766) (grave G.3.12)

An Anglican Archdeacon in Ireland who courted controversy over transubstantiation.

Arthur Hele (1712-1778) (grave G.3.16)

Master of the Free Grammar School, Bath 1762-78.

Layout

The churchyard is around all four sides of the church. From the burial registers, the areas have been given letters A-G. Area H is used here to designate the part next to the church which has some flat stones which are likely to have been once inside the church.

Area A

An area to the north of the church. Arranged in a grid. However, arranging the graves according to the designations in the burial registers does not conform to what is actually found. It has 46 memorials.

Area B

An area south of the church. It contains 88 memorials mostly in the western part where they are arranged in rows. The eastern part is very sparse in memorials and those there are mainly old ones from the 1700s and early 1800s.

Area C

By the southern boundary wall. 23 memorials arranged in a grid with 4 graves per row.

Area D

8 memorials in the north-east of the churchyard along the western wall.

Area E

30 memorials west of the church. It includes some memorial plaques.

Area F

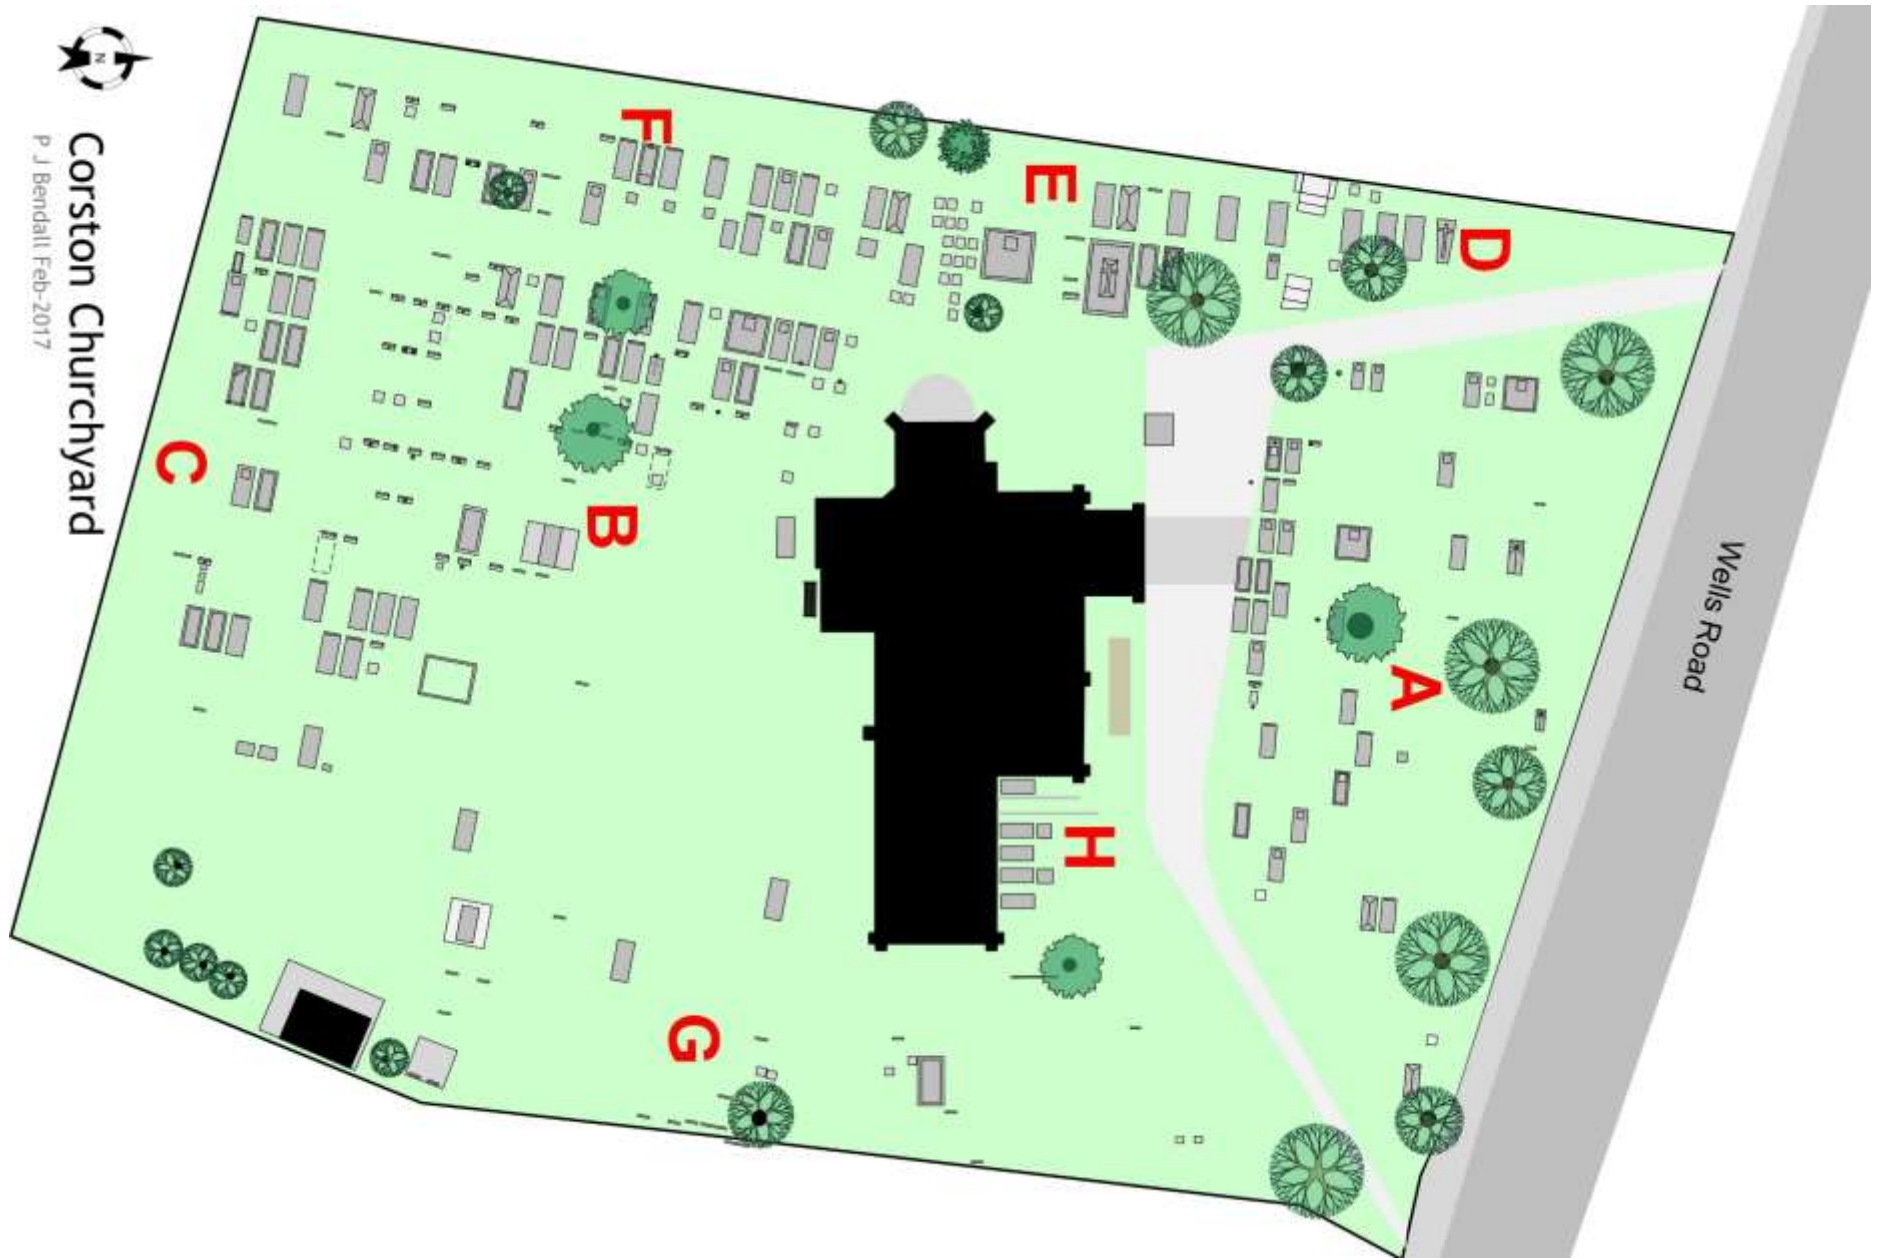

Along the western wall, two rows with 39 memorials.

Area G

Along the eastern wall. It has some old headstones against the wall which may have been moved from elsewhere. Some 19th-century headstones and a slab surrounded by a metal fence. About a dozen memorial plaques.

Area H

Seven stones from the 1700s by the northern wall of the church at the eastern end.

Section A

This section, north of the church, is arranged in a grid and has 46 memorials

In 1787 an advertisement in the Bath Chronicle for a coach referred to Mr Stephen Ryles of Monmouth Street. In 1788 there were advertisements for equestrian-based entertainment at 'Ryles' Ride, the top of Monmouth-street'. An advertisement in 1789 had 'By the King's Royal Letters Patent Ryle's Circular Riding-School . . .' again referring to equestrian-based entertainment. At about this time the advertisements started using the title 'Ryles's Amphitheatre'. In 1801 a notice in the Bath Chronicle informed the reader that the riding school had been enlarged and a riding master (E Dash) had been appointed. Matric. 1730; B.A. 1732-3; M.A. 1766. Ord. deacon (Salisbury) July 9, 1734. Usher of the Grammar School, Basingstoke, 1749-58. V. of Corston, Somerset, 1755-78. Master of the Grammar School, Bath, 1758-78. R. of Charlcombe, 1762-78. R. of Porlock, 1763-78. Preb. of Wells, 1764-78. Buried at Corston, Apr. 30, 1778. (Scott-Mayor, III. 424; H. G. Harrison.) From Admissions To The College of St John the Evangelist in the University of Cambridge Vol 2 p59: Richard Hele, the father, was master of the Choristers School and prebendary of Salisbury, Vicar of Britford, and author of a well-known work entitled Devotions for the Clergy. He was also author of Select Offices of Private Devotion, which has been frequently reprinted. Arthur Hele first joined Trinity College, Oxford, matriculating from there 20 June 1728 (Foster, Alumni Oxonienses). He was ordained Deacon 9 July 1734 by the Bishop of Salisbury. His earliest preferment was apparently the curacy of Sidbury in Devonshire. On 18 May 1749 he was elected usher of the Free Grammar (or Holy Ghost). School of Basingstoke, and on 21 December 1750 obtained from the Corporation a patent of his office for life "in case he should so long reside within the

In 1758 he was appointed Master of the Free Grammar School at Bath, whereupon he resigned the ushership of the Holy Ghost School, and on 5 October 1762 he was instituted to the Rectory of Charlcombe, near Bath. On 19 March 1763 he was instituted to the Rectory of Porlock, in the same county, on the presentation of King George III., and on 23 October 1764 prebendary of Wells Cathedral. He held these preferments up to his death in April 1778. He was buried at Corston on 30 April 1778 as 'Vicar of this parish.' His tomb in the churchyard has been neglected, and the inscription much defaced. All that remains is: "Beneath this tomb is interred the [body of the Rev.] Arthur Hele [M.A. Vicar of this Parish, and Rector of the] Parish Church of Charlcombe, [and of] Porlock, [Prebendary of the] Cathedral Church of Wells, and f[or nearly] twenty years Master of the Grammar School, in the City of Bath. [A man] of inflexible integrity in all his dealings [with] an openhearted hospitality towards [all his friends and] acquaintances " The words in brackets are conjectures for filling up the blanks (Hardy's he Neve, i, 209 ; Baigent and Millard, History of the Town and Manor of Basingstoke, 154, 690, 714 5) The character of Thwackum in Fielding's Tom Jones is said to have been drawn from Mr Richard Hele (Hoare, History of Modern Wiltshire, 602).
