Introduction

Figure 1

The church of St John the Baptist is part of a joint benefice with St Peter's, Freshford, and St Mary's, Limpley Stoke within the archdeaconry of Bath. The village's website gives a history of the building (<http://www.hintoncharterhouse.com/st%20johns%20church.htm>).

The building is Grade II* listed by Historic England. The graveyard is south of the church with a new section in the eastern part of this area. The main part of the graveyard is only sparsely populated with memorials with some headstones having been placed in a row along the northern wall.

From Rambles About Bath by R E M Peach (1876): "The church is chiefly in the early English style, presenting nothing worthy of notice, except its square tower, which differs from those of the neighbouring churches. This tower, though peculiar, is not as regards its upper story much more than a hundred years old. The church has been repaired under the superintendence of the late Mr. Elkington Gill. At the chancel end is the neat freestone sarcophagus of Mr. Symonds, of Hinton Abbey, who died in 1830. Within, are some memorials of the Hungerford family."

A wall memorial in the church for George Clarke Symonds (1775-1830) has "by his zealous endeavours in obtaining an endowment from Queen Anne's bounty this church was separated from that of North St Philips, and became an independent benefice, under the title of a perpetual curacy". In Rambles About Bath by R E M Peach pp177-178 it is related how in 1527 the monks of Hinton Priory had the responsibility for Hinton Charterhouse passed to Norton St Philip and that the joint parish was separated in 1826 to form two, Hinton Charterhouse becoming a perpetual curacy under the patronage of the vicar of Norton St Philip. In the intervening period it was referred to as the 'Charterhouse Hinton Chapelry'. From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 23 Dec 1824 p3 "Thursday the Rev. Henry Blayds, clerk, M.A. was licensed to the perpetual curacy of Charterhouse Hinton, lately augmented by the governors of Queen Anne's bounty." (Queen Anne's Bounty instigated in 1704 was intended to augment the income of poor clergy.)

From the Bristol Mirror of Sat 1 Apr 1826 p3:

On Thursday, Thomas Spencer M.A., Fellow of St. John's college, ---, was licensed by his Lordship to the perpetual and augmented curacy of Charterhouse Hinton, at the nomination of the Rev. James Commeline, vicar of Nort St. Philips, from which Charterhouse Hinton has been lately disunited, vacant by the resignation of the Rev. Henry Blayds.

In 1840 while the Church of England was struggling with different factions, Rev Thomas Spencer, Perpetual Curate of Hinton Charterhouse published a pamphlet entitled Clerical Conformity and Church Property. In this, in a question & answer form, he inveighed against "the Puseyite clergy, who hold Roman Catholic doctrines with Protestant incomes. Secondly.- The fox-hunting, ball-going, and race-frequenting clergy, who hold no doctrines at all, but who receive the incomes of the Church". A review of another of his publications which appeared in The Christian Remembrancer, Volume V (Jan-Jun 1843) condemned some of his views as 'outrageous' and questioned why he still had his post as a clergyman. In 1844 he wrote another pamphlet which objected to his parishioners contributing money for building churches. He died in London in 1853 and was buried at Hinton Charterhouse.

In 1849-50, Sir George Gilbert Scott, in addition to his numerous restorations in the Bath area and elsewhere in Somerset, carried out general repairs and a reseating to the church at Hinton Charterhouse.

From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 19 Dec 1895 p2:

CONSECRATION OF NEW CHURCHYARD,

On Wednesday morning, December the 11th, the Lord Bishop of Bath and Wells consecrated the ground which has been added to the Churchyard at Hinton Charterhouse. The new Piece, which is a little more than a quarter of an acre in extent, is the joint gift of the Vicar and Mr. E. T. D. Foxcroft, and was formerly an allotment garden. New allotments of an acre and a quarter have been provided by Mr. Foxcroft, close by, so that the parish is even better furnished with allotments than before. The act of consecration was preceded by Morning Prayer in the church at 11.30, when the Bishop occupied a canopied throne which had been erected in the sanctuary, and when the Bishop preached to numerous congregation. . . . After the service, the choir, and the clergy, the Lord Bishop, and the congregation, left the church in procession (headed by the processional cross), singing "Jesus lives," and repaired to the ground which was to be consecrated. The ground was perambulated, whilst Psalms 49 and 115 were sung, and then the Bishop and the Clergy ascended a platform which had been erected in the middle of the ground for the concluding part of the service. Here the sentence of consecration was read and signed, and again the Bishop gave a short address. He urged that every reverent care should be taken of the churchyard, and specially asked that every monument which should be erected there should speak brightly of the Christian Hope and Faith. The Bishop gave his blessing, and as the hymn "O God our help in ages past," was sung, the procession returned to the church. The singing outside was led by a cornet, very ably played by Mr. John Horler, of Wellow. On the return to the church the Bishop visited the choir vestry, and spoke kindly to the choir, thanking them for the very reverent service in which he said it had been a pleasure to him to take part.

Mr. Foxcroft entertained the Bishop and the Clergy and some others to luncheon after the ceremony was over.

A plaque on the wall has:

FIVE PERCHES OF LAND
WERE ADDED
TO THE CHURCHYARD
IN 1901 BY
F. M. R.
IN MEMORY OF HER HUSBAND
JOHN ROBERTS
FOR MANY YEARS CHURCHWARDEN
OF THIS PARISH

(5 perches is about 126 m².)

Occupants

The occupation has been determined for about 9% of the male occupants. The types of occupation reflect the agricultural nature of the local economy.

The age is present in the burial register from 1813, rarely in entries prior to this. 21% of those buried were aged under 11 and 36% aged over 70. This contrasts with poor urban parishes where about 40% were aged under 11.

There are annotations in the burial register: for 1759 ‘smallpox in the parish’ and for 1770 ‘a ulcerous sore throat fatal this year to children’.

The number of burial per year has declined from about 14 in 1800 to less than 4 during the 20th century. The peak in 1837 due to an influenza epidemic is not evident for this village.

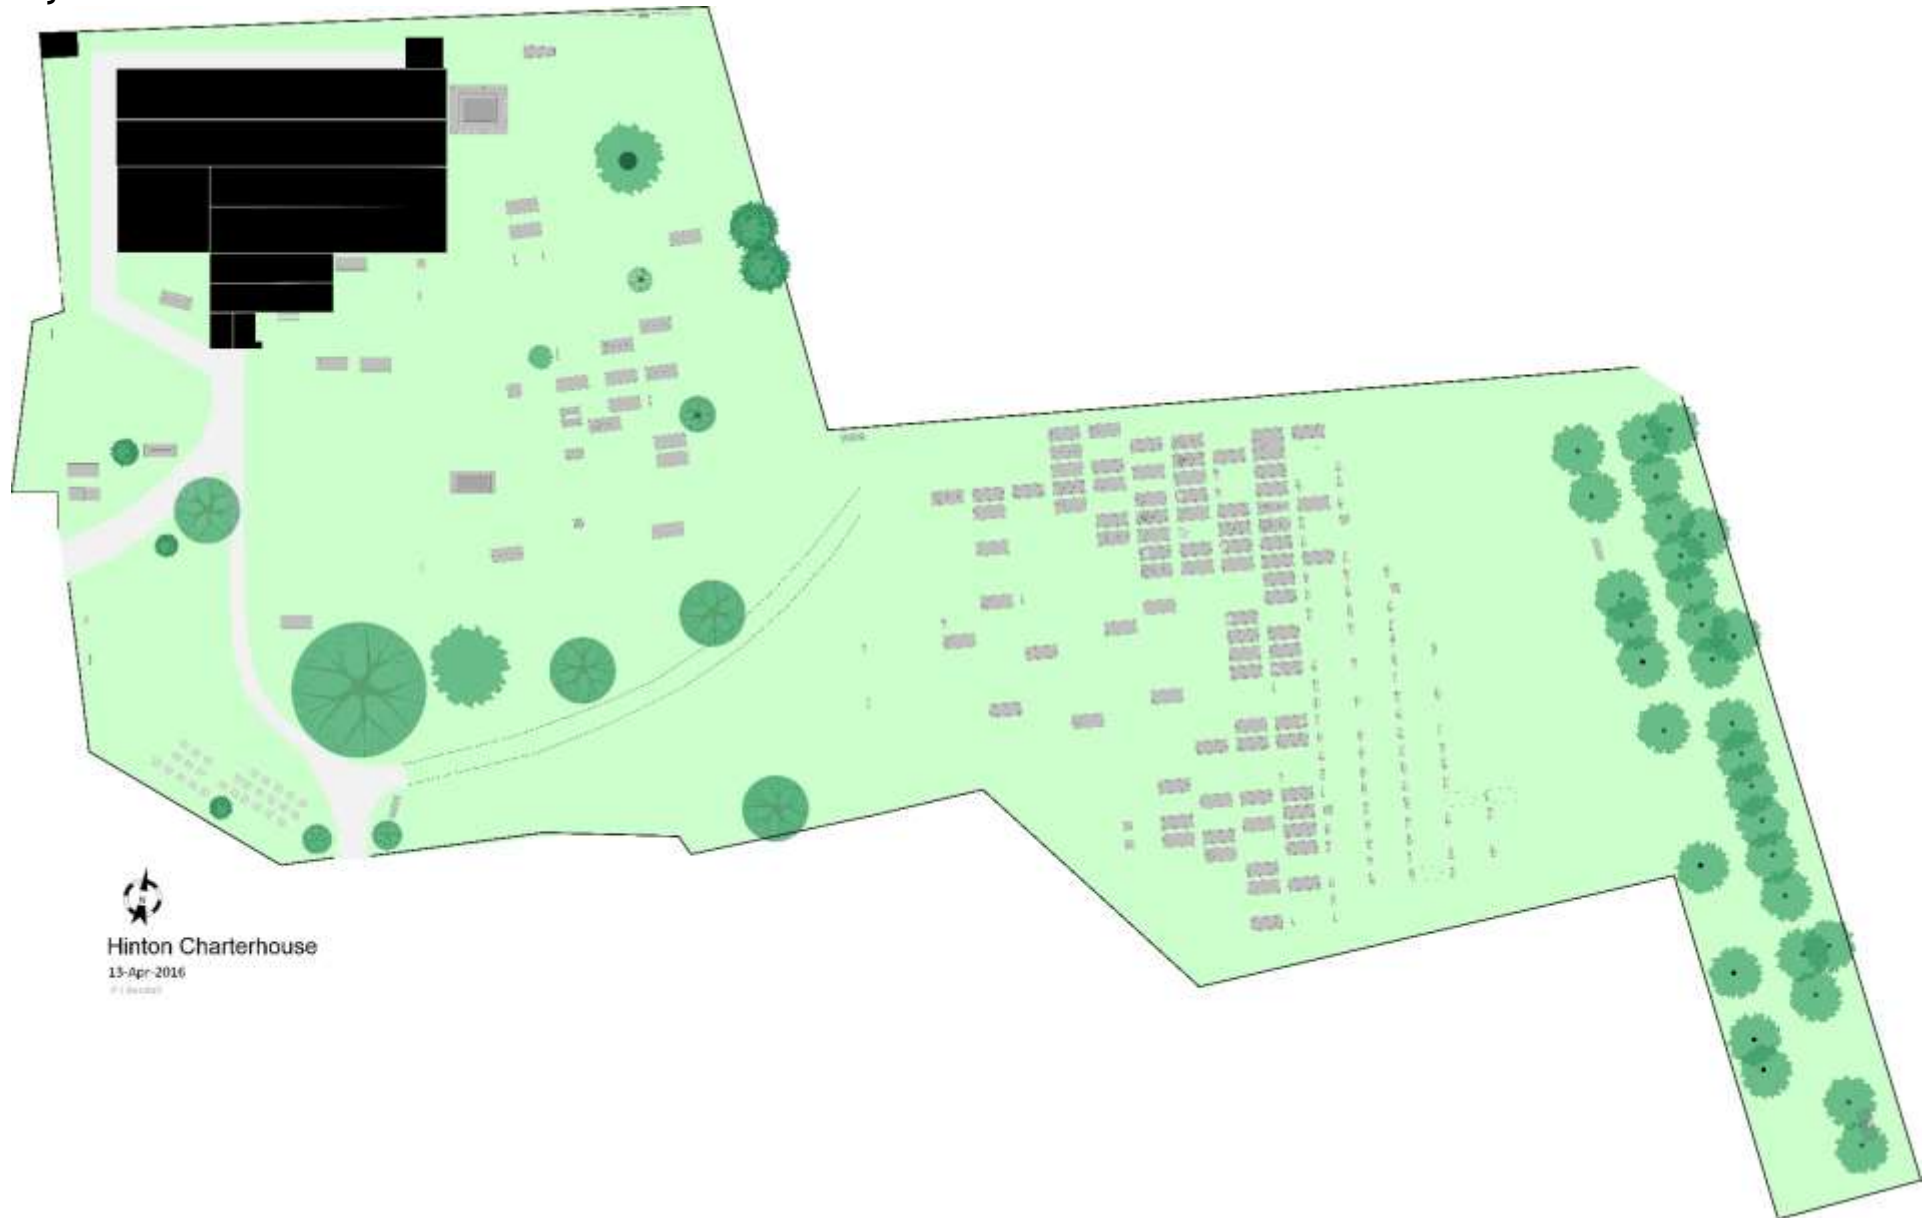

Acknowledgements

I am grateful to Liz Wordsworth for making available the current burial registers and to John G Macdonald, Isla M M Tuck, Nick & Meg Paige, David Woods and John Banks for proving information on some of the inscriptions.

Other Documentation

Hinton Charterhouse, Village Records 1953, produced under the direction of the local Women’s Insitute, contains anecdotes and information about many of the individuals buried here.

Thomas Spencer, at that time perpetual curate of Hinton Charterhouse, near Bath. Thomas, like the rest of the Spencer family, was a man of strongly-marked individuality, and, though an adherent of the Evangelical school, was so strange a specimen of his class that he was commonly regarded as hopelessly eccentric, if not indeed a trifle mad. A Radical at a period when nearly the whole Established Church was in bondage to the High Tory party; a teetotaler when the temperance movement was condemned by the religious world at large as a subtle form of Atheism; a Chartist, an avowed Free Trader, and (with a single exception) "the only clergyman out of fifteen thousand who contended that the people of England,
