Introduction

The church of St Mary the Virgin, Hemington

There was a letter in the Frome Times of Wed 28 Apr 1869 p3 from the parishioners of Hemington. In a vestry meeting it had been proposed to make the churchyard into pasture ground.

“But as the state of the churchyard we did think, and still think, it a very serious question. The Rector may claim the Churchyard as his own freehold, but to many of us the Churchyard has another aspect than that of property. Many of us think that we have a freehold in the affectionate memory in which we hold those near and dear ones we laid there. We look upon their resting place as a sacred place - the acre set apart from the surrounding acres; and we do maintain that it is contrary to our feeling that the Churchyard should be turned into a pasture ground. . . . As parishioners of Hemington, we feel we have the right to speak of the Rector’s arrangements for Hardington. . . .”

This is not unprecedented. The Bath Chronicle of early 1862 had a series of articles about a scandal arising from desecration of Freshford church with ‘an informant’ relating how a previous vicar had removed the memorials.

From the Bristol Mercury of Wed 22 Nov 1899 p5:
Hemington Church on Fire

Yesterday morning Mark Humphries, a labourer, of Hemington, discovered smoke issuing from the roof of the Parish Church of St. Mary Hemington. An alarm was immediately given, and the Radstock Fire Brigade, under Capt. Hugh McMurtrie and Hon. Surgeon Richard G. Worger, were soon on the scene. Before their arrival the church doors were opened, and the flames were soon apparent in the roof over the organ chamber and choir stalls. The brigade scaled the building and ripped off a portion of the lead roofing and heavy stones with which the edifice was covered. Buckets of water were raised to the roof by means of ropes and poured upon the burning mass, and the flames were soon subdued. The majority of the church furniture beneath the roof where the fire occurred was removed, but the organ was damaged by water, burning fragments, &c. The fire is supposed to have originated from a stove, which was last lit on Sunday, and everything appeared quite safe on Monday. The church is an ancient one, of fine Norman architecture, and a font within dates from 1260. The oak roof, probably many hundreds of years old, was considerably damaged, and a large portion of it totally wrecked. The fire in the stove had not been touched since the dinner hour on Sunday, and was to all appearances extinguished or nearly extinguished on the Sunday evening after service.

In the report of the fire in the Bath Chronicle of Thu 23 Nov 1899 p3:

The church is an ancient stone edifice and was restored by Sir Gilbert Scott in 1859.

From The Western Daily Press of Thu 28 Apr 1932 p9:

HEMINGTON

Church Restoration Scheme.

At a general meeting held at the Falkland Old Schools, to make preliminary arrangements to organise efforts towards restoration work at the parish church, it was announced that Lord Hylton was extending keen interest and warm support for the scheme. The Rev. J. C. Steward presided, and gave a detailed report on the proposed work.

From The Western Daily Press of Mon 17 Aug 1932 p5:

HEMINGTON CHURCH RE-OPENED.

After being closed for two months for restoration Hemington parish church of St. Mary was re-opened on Friday evening by the Venerable Archdeacon Farrer, of Wells. The church is a very ancient structure and was badly in need of renovating. The ravages of the death watch beetle were discovered when the work was commenced. Writing on the north wall was uncovered, and a Somerset expert (Mr Blevins) dates it to the 16th century. Lord Hylton, who owns much property in the parish, has contributed £150 towards the £400 needed for the work just completed. The work of re-hanging the church bells has been postponed owing to the unexpected cost of restoration.

The harvest thanksgiving services took place yesterday, the Rev. H. V. Johnson, of Lullington and Orchardleigh officiating. The collections were in aid of the Bath United and Paulton Memorial Hospitals.

Burial Registers

At Somerset Heritage Centre:

D/P/hem 2/1/1 Burials 1539-1653

D/P/hem 2/1/2 Burials 1653-1698

D/P/hem 2/1/3 Burials 1698-1773

D/P/hem 2/1/5 Burials 1774-1812

D/P/hem 2/1/7 Burials 1813-1919

The post 1919 register is with the parish.

In the burial register the plots are given for some burials. Until 1925 these are show as 'G' followed by a number, thereafter 'SG' for a single grave and 'DG' for a double grave followed by a number. At some point the grave numbers have been redesignated and some have both the old number and the new number in green ink.

A curiosity is that the abode given in the register has about 40% as Falkland/Faulkland. The villages of Faulkland and Hardington are part of the parish of Hemington. Hardington has its own church, St Mary's, next to Manor Farm, with one of the smallest church towers in England. The village of Hardington became extinct in the Black Death of 1348, the Bampfylde family later restoring the church. Falkland does not have its own Anglican church.

An article by John Oswin in the Bath and Counties Archaeological Society's journal (Camertonia 39 2001, pp5-10) examines the changes in population of Hemington and Faulkland, the development of Ammerdown, Turner's Terrace and Row and the change in types of occupation during the 19th century. The same volume also includes a brief history of Hemington with various anecdotes by Gill Holt.

The southern part of the churchyard is very sparse in its memorials. In addition to the clearance in 1869, in the 1970s, churchwardens decided arbitrarily and without consulting anyone to remove some memorials in the southeastern area.

According to the Hardington Vale Benefice website in 2018, there are discussions with the Church Conservation Council "with a view to their assuming responsibility" for the church. This organisation is the national charity protecting churches at risk and has charge of over 350 Anglican churches.
