Introduction

The Wellow & Shoscombe Cemetery came about because the graveyard at St Julian's church, Wellow had become full and it was ordered to be closed. While schemes to extend the church's graveyard were considered, eventually the matter was handed over to the civil authorities and the parish council bought a plot of land between Shoscombe and Wellow and set up a burial board for its management.

The land, one and a quarter acres (0.5 ha), was selected to be able to serve both Wellow, with its diminishing population, and Shoscombe, with its increasing population. As issue was that any funeral service for someone from Shoscombe would have to go to Wellow first before returning to the cemetery. There was a proposal to include a nonconformist chapel on the site and then a petition was raised for it to be an Anglican one. In the end, as the money had run out, no chapel was built.

While the issue of the provision of cemetery had been raised several times in the 1880s, it was only in 1898 that the issue was forced by an order being made for church's graveyard to be closed. In common with most cemeteries at the time, the layout had separate Anglican and non-Anglican sections. The Anglican portion of the cemetery was consecrated by the Bishop of Bath & Wells on 4 Apr 1900 with the first burial occurring later than month.

BURIALS DIFFICULTY AT WELLOW
THE CHURCHYARD TO BE CLOSED.
INTERESTING STATEMENT BY THE VICAR.

A largely attended vestry meeting was held on Tuesday evening at the Schools, Wellow. The Vicar, the Rev. Le Gendre G. Horton, presided, and among those present were Messrs. W. Cole, J. R. Gale, A. Holdway, W. Cole, junr., T. Oborn, W. J. Oborn, R. Long, W. F. Long, L. C. Paget, J. E. King, J. Pow, J. Pow, junr., H. A. | Gough, J. H. Gough, J. Hedges, J. Tucker, W. Mattick, J. Holding, G. Collier, J. Bennett, J. Hales, R. Gill, H. Price, S. Newsome, J. Blacker, R. Player, G. Montague, W. Palmer, W. G. Bailey, M. Smith, W. Montague, F. Veal, C. Cole, G. Ashman, J. Lane, and others. The Vicar was suffering from a slight injury his left foot caused by an accident, and in consequence asked the meeting to excuse him from standing. He opened proceedings by making the following statement:—This vestry meeting has been called, as you are aware, to consider what steps shall be taken to provide a new Burial Ground for the parish of Wellow, the present churchyard will be closed by Order in Council on the 30th September next, 1898, and I do not think that I can preface the remarks I have to make better way than by giving you the following interesting statistics, for after a most careful perusal of the parish registers, which date from 1561, and which have been most carefully kept (except during the unsettled times of the Civil War and the Commonwealth, during which time there were no entries made of burials in the parish) we find that there have been buried the church and churchyard no less than 3,556 persons, or a yearly average of 10.5. From 1561 to 1600 the yearly average was 6.1; from 1600 to 1700, during which time the interregnum of 26 years occurred the average was 8.5; from 1700 to 1800 the yearly average was 9; from 1880 to 1897 the average was 16.3. The largest number of burials in a single year was in 1740, when 35 burials took place, and the second largest number was 22 years ago, in 1875, when there were as many as 32 interments. The total number of burials for the 336 years is 3,556, and these do not by any means represent all who are lying in the church and churchyard, for the present church was built sometime during the 14th century, or 500 years ago, and so many interments of parishioners must have taken place before any authentic registers were kept, which makes it more than probable that the remains of at least 5,000 persons have been interred in the present churchyard, which is only 2 roods 33 perches in extent (including paths, and tombs, and spaces round the church). That burials can longer continue there, and that should have been taken many years ago to provide fresh ground, is perfectly evident to all, and neither I myself as Vicar, nor the Churchwarden, will undertake the responsibility of the present disgraceful state of affairs, for from time to time since March 25th, 1890, the matter has been continually brought forward at the parish vestries by the churchwardens and myself, and only the great apathy and want of interest in the matter on the part of the parishioners has now caused us to arrive at such crisis that absolutely we do not know where to dig the next grave, for the fact must not be lost sight of that if 5,000 persons have been buried in the present churchyard, which is only 2 roods 33 perches in extent, and allowing 6ft. by 2ft. for each grave, every inch of the ground must have been buried over many times during the last 500 years. Here the Vicar read from the minute book extracts of the proceedings at vestries since 1890, showing that the overcrowded condition of the churchyard and the disgraceful state of the churchyard walls had been discussed almost every year, and then proceeded: —You will thus see that for many years the question of a new burial ground has been before the parish vestry, but not until last Easter was any definite resolution arrived at; then the Chairman was directed to write the Home Secretary asking that the present churchyard should be closed. In response to tins communication Dr. Hoffman visited Wellow, and on the 10th November a copy of the following letter was sent to the Vicar, Churchwardens, and the Clerk to the Parish Council. (This letter contained official intimation as to the closing of the churchyard). And this was followed by an Order in Council, which has been posted for one month on the doors all churches and chapels in the parish. Now it is obvious that something must be done, and very quickly too, as things have come to such a state that the sexton observed to me the other day that absolutely he does not know where to dig the next grave, and indeed for the last few years the great difficulties that had be contended with have been known only to the sexton, myself, and a few others, and graves have been dug over and over again in ground which never ought to have been disturbed. Many of the surrounding parishes where there is probably decreasing rather than an increasing population, viz., Hinton Charterhouse, Camerton, Dunkerton, Priston, Newton St. Loe, and Combehay have already enlarged their churchyards, while we at Wellow with a steadily increasing population have for so many years quietly allowed matters to slide, and, bad as things are, but for the consecration of the new churchyard at Peasedown St. John, which provides for a portion of the parish of Wellow, I do not know where we should have been today. It is true that Wellow has had, many difficulties to face, and so far they have been boldly met and successfully overcome, viz., enlargement of the Schools at cost of £1,075, the providing of water supply for the village of Wellow, the providing of water supply for the hamlets of Shoscombe and Single Hill, and as far as I can see, noticing as I do the building in many directions of numbers of new houses, we are not by any means at end of water and drainage schemes in this parish.

It may have been that these things have caused us to postpone the consideration of this burial question, but this should not have happened, for it is quite as necessary and as urgent, if not more so, as any of the others, and now we are face to face with this problem which will have to be solved at rather short notice before the 30th September next, and the question at once arises how is it to be done? Well there are many ways. I will briefly mention a few. Firstly, the Vicar and Churchwardens and the Parish Vestry may carry out enlargement of churchyard, or the making cemetery by means of voluntary subscriptions, or a voluntary rate, but I can see no possibility myself of this being done. Secondly, a Burial Board may be formed, which would be the Parish Council, who will have powers to borrow money for making a public cemetery, which might either be contiguous to the present churchyard or some other part of the parish which is considered most desirable for all concerned. And the formation of a Burial Board is the only possible scheme that presents itself to my mind, for it seems most unlikely that the money could be collected by subscriptions or voluntary rate, and also because the parish so very scattered that it is really difficult to know what situation would most suitable for a cemetery to be convenient to all. I myself more than once have endeavoured to dispose of the difficulty, and 1895, in conjunction with the Bishop, who was most anxious and interested in the matter, brought forward a project when the living of Foxcote was vacant, to form a new Ecclesiastical District—such as Peasedown is—out of the parish Foxcote and portion of the parish of Wellow, known as Single Hill, Shoscombe, and Shoscombe Bottom. An acre of land or more could then have been obtained at Shoscombe for a church, a churchyard, and a Vicarage House. The money in all probability would have been forthcoming for the church, and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners would have provided a Vicarage House, whilst I myself as Vicar of Wellow and Patron of the Advowson was willing permanently give over to the new parish of Foxcote cum Shoscombe £100 a year from the income of the living of Wellow, which, putting the rate of interest at 3 per cent, which most people to-day are thankful to get, would represent gift of £3,000 to the Shoscombe end of the parish. A new parish would thus have been formed with a church, vicarage house, churchyard and income for the clergyman over a year, without any expense to the landowners and ratepayers, and at the same time it should be clearly understood that neither the civil boundaries, the assessment of the rates, nor anything else which affected either the parish of Foxcote or Wellow in its civil capacity would have been interfered with in the slightest degree. This however was thwarted the opposition of a Foxcote parishioner (who I have since heard' was supported by one and only one Wellow parishioner), who said that he always had a parson for himself and intended to have one. If these were the sentiments of many people in these days that one person should have a parson to himself, or even forty or fifty one themselves it is my opinion a great argument for the disestablishment of the Church of England, for can there be work enough amongst 62 people for the energies of one man, indeed I feel quite certain that the present Rector of Foxcote, like the last, must be continually longing for more to do, and a compact parish might thus have been formed without loss of money or income except to myself and all future vicars of Wellow, and if this parish of Foxcote-cum-Shoscombe had been formed property in Shoscombe would to-day have been worth 25 per cent, more than it is the present time, for as the Americans say to float a town successfully you must have a church, a chapel, a graveyard and a school, and a store or shop. You have already the school and two chapels, and Mr. Collier's shop, and only wanted the church and its surroundings to make the place complete. And again if this new parish had been formed we should not have been here to-night discussing how provide a new burial ground for the whole of the parish, but only for the village, end which would have meant only about eight burials a year; for Shoscombe and Single Hill would have been provided for, and the Peasedown portion Wellow, thanks to my late father, is provided for until we have a public cemetery, when they will have a right return to us. In conclusion the Vicar said it was for that meeting to consider whether the difficulty should be surmounted by a voluntary effort or by leaving it to a Burial Board, i.e., the Parish Council. They had no power as vestry, but that meeting had been convened to consider what would be best.

Mr. Gough said having been the mover of the resolution at the last vestry asking the Home Secretary to close the churchyard he was willing to take his share of the responsibility. He knew from personal observation that a new burial ground was public necessity.

Mr. Hedges thought there was plenty of land adjoining which could be enclosed and added the present churchyard.

The Vicar: The question is how the money to be found.

Mr. Hedges: we got the land we could soon enclose it. It would be great pity to run away from the old spot. Talk about buying and paying for one acre down here I would give you two acres up at Hassage (laughter).

The Vicar: I don't see many landowners present. They were very liberal about the Schools, and you can hardly expect a landowner to be always putting his hand into his pocket. ,

Mr. Hedges: there no land be had round the churchyard ?

The Vicar: No I think not.

Mr. Hedges: Is it all built on?

The Vicar: No.

Mr. Hedges: I think it is quite possible to put a bit of land on as they have done other places. I don't think Wellow is short of bit of ground (hear, hear, and laughter). I think we had better adjourn this meeting and have another (laughter).

The Vicar: We should have to hold a parish meeting next. This is only a vestry meeting held out of courtesy to see if anybody could show how the money could be found in a voluntary manner. If the Parish Council take it over it becomes a compulsory matter at once.

Mr. Robert Long: I suppose about 60 perch would enough. Is there no chance of adding 30, at the top of the churchyard and 30 the side?

The Vicar: There would be quite an acre wanted. When we were discussing it with Dr. Hoffman he said so, and the Home Office are very strict.

Mr. Long: I thought if we could add 60 perch that would last 40 or 50 years, and then would possible to bury again in the present churchyard.

The Vicar: That is closed for ever after the 30th September, and quite proper that it should be so. The Vicar mentioned that in one grave dug the remains of seven people were disturbed. In one instance recently grave fell in as the funeral arrived the church, and had they not had a second man to dig while the service was proceeding there would have been no grave ready.

Mr. C. Cole: It would be a great pity to run away from the old churchyard.

The Vicar: The question is how to find the money!

Mr. Hedges: The money would be found. I'll do my bit towards it.

The Vicar: We want more than words, we want security. It is not a matter that can be trifled with.

Mr. Hedges: What is the price the land. You want to know how much is needed before people can promise.

The Vicar said in 1886 at public auction he bid for the field which belonged to Mr. Morris, next to the church, thinking it might be useful for this purpose. He bid £250 for three-quarters of an acre, and then someone exceeded him, but the land was not sold.

Mr. R. Player thought the west (Shoscombe) end of the parish had had to travel to Wellow churchyard for years enough, and he should like to see a cemetery nearer their end of the parish.

Mr. Hedges: We live two miles away at Hassage, and the worst roads in the parish, but I don't mind coming to the parish church.

The Vicar pointed out that the other end of the parish was increasing largely.

Mr. Gale suggested to the Chairman that they should first discuss the question where should the new burial ground be, instead of how the money was to be raised. People would not promise subscriptions until they knew what was proposed.

The Vicar: I hardly think we are a position to do that, for parish meeting might be held to upset your decision entirely. My own feeling—and it was the feeling of my father—is that there should be a central cemetery.

Mr. Gale : I don't think you would get many subscriptions for laying out a new cemetery at Shoscombe. To do that and build two new chapels would mean thousands of pounds. To enlarge the present churchyard would not cost a quarter of what that would mean.

Mr. Leopold Paget said there was no doubt that Wellow had to face a real difficulty. It seemed him to rather putting the cart before the horse to discuss how the money could be raised before they knew what the scheme was. He suggested that a committee should be appointed to visit likely sites and estimate the probable cost. Then they would be in a better position to see how the money might be obtained.

The Vicar stated that the question had been before the Parish Council, and they had corresponded with Mrs. Morris to know whether they could buy the field near the church. He read letter from Messrs. Rooke and Macdonald. Her solicitors, who said they could not sell, and thought it could be taken as direct refusal.

In answer to Mr. Gale, the Vicar said Mrs. Morris could not be compelled sell, and Mr. Horton added that the occupier of any tenement within 100 yards of the site could object to a burial ground being consecrated.

Mr. Mattick thought a voluntary scheme would be best, but he thought the end would have to come to the Parish Council. A man did not care to subscribe when another larger ratepayer and landowner refused pay.

The Vicar: I quite agree with you that there the difficulty of getting people to subscribe as they should do. There are very few landowners here to-night, and are the tenants ready to pay a heavy voluntary rate? If it is voluntary rate we should get nothing from the Railway Company.

Mr. R. Long: We are now quite the. dark the probable cost.

Mr. Gale proposed, and Mr. W. Cole seconded, that the provision of new burial ground carried out by voluntary subscription, and was carried, 33 voting for and one (Mr. Newsome) against.

The Chairman: Now someone must suggest what steps will be taken to collect the money.

Mr. R. Long proposed, and Mr. Montague seconded, that committee be formed, and it was carried unanimously.

When the nomination of the committee occurred Mr. Paget declined to serve, saying he was not a parishioner. He only acted as the representative of Lord Hylton, and his lordship he knew would be quite satisfied to follow any course that met with the general approval of the parishioners.

Yielding to the general desire of the meeting, however, Mr. Paget consented to act, and the committee was constituted as follows:—The Vicar, Messrs. R. Long, W.

Cole, W. Steart, Gale, Collier, Mattick, Paget, Hedges, Budd, Pobjoy, G. Montague, King, Hancock, James Coles, Gough, and Pow.

Mr. Gale proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar for presiding, and for his courtesy in calling the vestry that the parishioners could have an opportunity of discussing the subject.

Mr. T. Oborn seconded, and it was earned by acclamation.

The Vicar, in reply, thought the Committee the more they investigated the question the more complicated would they find it.

It was agreed that the committee should meet on Friday evening.

WELLOW CEMETERY QUESTION.

A SITE DECIDED UPON.

There was a largely-attended parish meeting at Shoscombe Chapel schoolroom on Friday evening, the business for which it was convened being the consideration of the question of selecting a new burial ground. In September of 1897, an order came from the Home Secretary requesting the Parish Council to provide a new burying place, as that adjoining the Wellow pariah church was full. A year was allowed in which to procure another place of interment, and that expired on Sept. 29. Extension of this limited period was applied for and granted until Christmas, as the Pariah Council had met with many difficulties. Considerable feeling has been excited between the new and populous and the ancient and somewhat waning part of the parish, which was the chief cause of the delay that has taken place. The Chairman of the Parish Council (Mr. W. Hancock) presided over Friday night's meeting, and among those present were: The Rev. Le Gendre G. Horton, Messrs. J. Bird (County Councillor for the Radstock division), W. Steart. and W. Cole (Rural District Councillors), W. Andrews, G. Montague, W. Rudd, H. A. Gough, A. White, and T. Oborn (Parish Councillors). The Chairman, in informing the parishioners how the question stood, described the negotiations that had been carried on with Messrs. Stone, King, and Co. Bath, concerning the proposal of Mr. R. Long to acquire a small field adjoining the present cemetery, and related how it had been definitely refused them. At the conclusion of these negotiations he approached Lord Temple, who offered to sell several pieces of land for the purpose, among them "Old England," which abuts on the main road and is about a mile from Wellow. That piece of ground the Parish Council decided would be a very convenient site, first of all because it was central for the whole parish, and then because of the price of the land—£100 per acre—which was certainly nothing to complain of in comparison with the very sums they had been talking about with regard to the other field. The scheme the Council recommended would not cost any more money, nor is much as the former proposal. There was an erroneous idea that a caretaker's house would be required. That, however, would not be necessary, as the cemetery would be in close proximity to the Wellow portion of the parish. £100 would cover the cost of the land to be obtained, and if they spent a similar sum on walling it in, that would make £200. Then there would be the question of a shelter. He should almost think they were compelled to have a shelter or chapel. If they put the cost of that at £250, the whole cemetery would incur an outlay of £450. Mr. John Smith : I think it would be most absurd to propose such a site as that. You bring the corpse from this end of the parish and have the service at the church and then bring it back again. The Chairman: We do not propose to. Mr. Smith: Certainly the corpse would have to be sent to the church. The Chairman: We do not propose to do that, we propose to have it on the spot. Mr. Smith : Oh ! in a shed (laughter). The objection that two chapels would be required—one for the Church party and another for the Nonconformists—was urged, and the Chairman said that was unnecessary. He had taken the opportunity of consulting the Home Office, and Dr. Hoffmann said it was against the spirit of the age to do so, because they were all equal in death.—Mr. R. Thomas moved the resolution : " That in the opinion of this meeting the piece of land, Upper Church stile, numbered 292A on the Tithe Map, would be the most fitting site for a burial ground that was obtainable at a reasonable price; and that this meeting authorise the Parish Council to take the necessary steps to acquire the same for that purpose. the owner, Mr. W. Cole being willing to accept £100 per acre for the land." —Mr. Cole seconded. —The Chairman inquired what extent of land would be required, and Mr. Long replied one acre one rood, the cost of which would amount to £125. —Mr. R. Player proposed an amendment, authorising the Parish Council to carry out the scheme proposed by them, and Mr. George Collier seconded. Mr. Bird asserted that the inspector would not accept the approaches to the ground mentioned in the resolution. The Chairman added that Dr. Hoffman decided in favour of the land the Council had recommended for purchase, and said that if they passed a votes for carrying out the scheme he should support them and give them their certificate for it. On the question being put to the vote the amendment was carried by 42 to 27. A resolution was passed confirming the decision arrived at at the previous Parish Meeting, by which the Parish Council were authorised to apply to the County Council for a loan of £600 to acquire a new cemetery.

From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 5 Apr 1900 p5:

CONSECRATION OF WELLOW
BURIAL GROUND.
ADDRESS BY THE BISHOP.

Yesterday afternoon the Lord Bishop of Bath and Wells consecrated a portion of the new cemetery which has been provided for the parish of Wellow. The burial ground question has been a burning one there for some years past, but it is not necessary to recount the many phases of the subject. Suffice to state that the parish churchyard, after several extensions of grace by the Home Office, is now permanently closed, and the dead of Wellow village and its many hamlets will now be interred a charmingly situated plot of land on the road to Shoscombe. It occupies high ground, and from the site grand views can be obtained. The land was purchased from Earl Temple, and is a slice of Old England—for that was the name of the pasture from which an acre and a quarter has been taken. Under the direction of W. J. Willcox, of Bath, County Surveyor of Somerset, the land has been laid out and enclosed. On three sides there are stone walls, while on the right the hedge has been retained, with an iron fence on the outer side. There are substantial but plain entrance gates and pillars. At present no chapel has been built, though the tender of Mr. Tovey, of Midsomer Norton (who has been the contractor) included a chapel. The delay has arisen over the question whether there shall be two chapels, one for Church of England and the other for Nonconformists. Upon this point there is a difference of opinion, and therefore the remarks the Bishop the ceremony were of especial interest. Already, in the purchase and enclosing of the ground, and the making of the pathways, over £500 of the £600 borrowed by the Parish Council from the County Council for the purpose has been expended. Bright, fine weather was experienced for the consecration service yesterday, in which a large number of parishioners joined. It commenced shortly after three o'clock, when the Bishop was received at the entrance by the Vicar of Wellow (the Rev Le G. G. Horton), the churchwardens (Messrs. H. A. Gough and A. Holdway) and Mr. W. Hancock (chairman of the Parish Council). The petition for consecration having been submitted, the Bishop formally signified his assent, and proceeded to the marquee, which had been erected for robing purposes. Upon his lordship emerging from this a procession was formed, which walked round the eastern half of the cemetery. It was headed by the processional cross from Wellow Church, carried Mr. T. Montague: then came the churchwardens with their official wands, while the Bishop was preceded the Rural Dean (the Rev. G. F. Cooke, Rector of Litton), who bore the pastoral staff. Behind his lordship walked the Chancellor the Diocese (Mr. T E. Rogers) ; next came the Diocesan Registrar (Mr. R. Harris). The Archdeacon Wells (the Ven. F. A. Brymer) was followed the Vicar and a number of surpliced clergy, including the Revs. H. L. Dawson (Vicar of Clandown). the Rev. A. Dewing, Rev. A. W. Dorman (Vicar of Hinton Charterhouse) Rev. C. Gamlen (Vicar of Peasedown St. John), Rev. T. J. C. Gardner (Rector of Radstock), Rev E. A. Luff (curate of Peasedown St. John), Rev. E. Newling (Vicar of Midsomer Norton), Rev. A. Ramsay (Rector of Writhlington), the Rev. J. Stone (Rector of Foxcote). Then came the combined choirs of Wellow and Shoscombe, and the choir girls, the Parish Council, the architect and the parishioners walking in double file. Psalms xvi., xxiii., and xlix. were chanted to Gregorian music as the circuit of the consecrated ground was made, a cornet (played by Mr. John Horlor) leading the choir. Having returned to the upper end of the ground the Bishop pronounced the consecration, which was followed the beautiful hymn. "On the Resurrection morning." The Sentence of Consecration was read the Chancellor, and the document was signed the Bishop, who charged his Registrar to register it and provide for its safe deposit the diocesan registry.

The Bishop addressing the congregation as "Dear people of Wellow" congratulated them on the fact that there had been secured a burial place for the parish, was so happily situated and accessible to the people who lived the parish. They had been engaged in a ceremony of great interest. There were persons who were ready enough to say there was something of superstition in such ceremony, and he should like them consider the meaning what they had been doing. The consecration of a burial ground really consisted of three distinct parts. There was the dedication of the ground for purpose for which it was meant. There followed upon that consecration the setting apart by legal act for that holy purpose the ground which had been selected and thereon they asked God's Benediction. When they thought of those who must be sorrowing for their friends whose bodies had fallen and been left unburied on the field in that distant South Africa at this present time they might well be thankful that in our dear old England it was possible to set apart and always protect for the solemn purpose ground in which we laid our dead. He had known, Australia. where bodies of the, dead had had been buried which had been afterwards used for most unworthy purposes. But such an act as that they had been engaged in prevented that for ever, for they could not without an Act of Parliament ever use for any other purpose the ground which they had solemnly set apart. Surely it was right they should ask God's blessing upon an act. Of those they laid there in certain hope of the resurrection to Eternal life they loved to think they were resting for awhile in hallowed ground. He hoped that they would see the advisability having a Chapel placed there in which according to their own rites of the Church England, they might have the Service of their church at the time of Burial. It was only right it should be so. They knew from the statistics of their own parish how very much more numerous were the burials with the rites the Church England than were the burials without those rites. Those statistics had been published and they would see that the members of the Church of England had a right ask that this should be done. Those who provided that burial ground would, he hoped, not forget that claim, and trusted that a chapel which might be consecrated might be speedily erected. He believed it was intended to have a chapel for those not members of Church of England, who did not like to use their services. It was perfectly right that the convictions and desires such people should respected, and he hoped they would be respected, but the members of Church of England surely also had a claim that their opinions should respected also. He was sure they would take care of that ground, he hoped they would make it as beautiful as they could, and that they would try to remove from their minds the gloomy associations which frequently were connected with our ideas of death and burial. Surely if we believed in the brightness of the home beyond, and in the goodness of the God who invited us to live with Him in that Eternal home, we ought not to sorrow as men without bone for those who fall asleep in the Lord, but as we thought of those who were resting and asleep the Paradise of our God, we ought to think of them with joy and happiness, for those who slept now that which we called death had really entered upon a truer life than we ourselves enjoy. The solemn and serious war in which so many our friends— and perhaps some from that neighbourhood—had fallen, had had this result. It had made many people care and think much more about duty than even of life itself. We learn that from those who had manfully fought and had bravely fallen. It was a lesson we might well take to heart ourselves, and remember that wherever we were the greatest thing is to do our duty in the sight of God and so live in God's fear and love that death will have lost its terrors for and shall know that death is but the gate of life eternal.

The hymn "We are dying day by day" was then sung, and, after prayer and the Blessing the Bishop, that joyful song of Eastertide, "Jesus lives." Among those present at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Beauchamp of Woodborough House, Mr. King, Mr. Tovey, and the following members the Parish Council: Messrs. Hancock (Chairman), W. Budd, W. Andrews, A. White, and E. Hudd. The Earl and Countess Temple and Lord and Lady Hylton, were prevented from attending, as they hoped to do, and Mrs. Horton was kept away by family bereavement. It may be mentioned that there is room in the new cemetery for about 1,200 grave spaces 9ft. by 4ft. The parish church bells pealed after the ceremony.

By the time of the opening of the cemetery £450 of the £600 borrowed had been spent and there were insufficient funds for a chapel.

Burial Registers

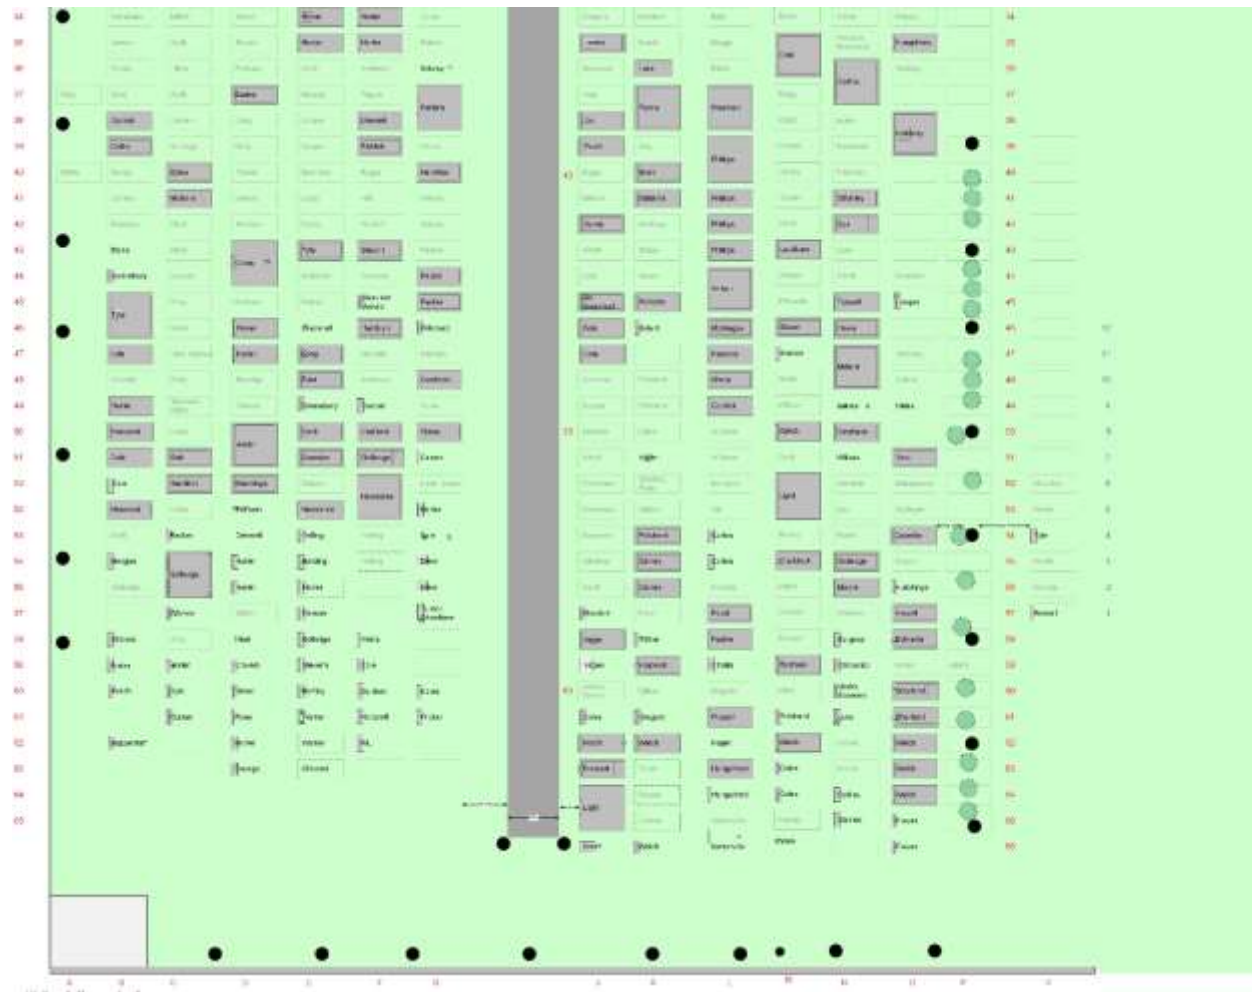

The parish council's burial board maintains its own register (burial order book) for the management of the cemetery along with a grave index and a surname index. Because it caters for Anglicans and nonconformists, burials may also be recorded in burial registers for the relevant parishes. Until the 1950s there were entries for the same burial in both Wellow Anglican and cemetery registers.

The cemetery's own register gives the locations of the burials as a row letter and plot number so it is possible to determine the location even if there is no memorial.
