Introduction

The church of St Mary, Timsbury

From the Imperial Gazetteer of 1870-72:

TIMSBURY, a parish, with a village, in Clutton district, Somerset; 2¾ miles NNW of Radstock r. station. It has a post-office under Bath. Acres, 1,148. Real property, £8,799; of which £3,684 are in mines. Pop., 1,551. Houses, 323. T. House is the seat of S. S. Samborne, Esq.; and Vale House, of J. Langford, Esq. Coal is largely worked. The living is a rectory in the diocese of Bath and Wells. Value, £390.* Patron, Baliol College, Oxford. The church was rebuilt mainly in 1825, partly in 1852. There are Independent and Wesleyan chapels and a national school.

From Kelly's Directory of Somerset 1897:

TIMSBURY is a parish and village, 1½ miles east of the high road from Bath to Wells and 1 north-west from Camerton terminal station of a branch of the Great Western railway, 8 south from Keynsham, 8 south-west from Bath, in the Northern division of the county, Chew hundred, Clutton union, Temple Cloud petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Bath and diocese of Bath and Wells. The church of St. Mary is a modern building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells: the churchyard is 516 feet above the level of the sea: the old parish church was pulled down and rebuilt in 1826: in 1852 the Rev. R. Hill M.A. then rector, added a handsome chancel and transepts, from designs by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. and in 1886 the old square pews and the north and south galleries were removed, under a faculty granted by the bishop: a new organ was also placed in the north transept at the same time, at a total cost of £690: there are sittings for 410 persons. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £320, including 65 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Balliol College, Oxford, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Leigh Thomas Rendell M.A. of that college. There are Congregational, Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. The church land produces £16 16s. yearly, arising from the rents of two houses and gardens. In this parish there are two collieries, "Conygre" and "Lower Conygre," varying in depth from 130 to 230 fathoms, both entirely free from explosive gas and in full work. The Somersetshire coal canal skirts the parish on the south. Timsbury House, the seat of Samborne Stukley Palmer-Samborne esq J.P. is a fine old Elizabethan mansion. Pendoggett, the property of Captain Francis Lamb Philp is at present occupied by Montgomery Boyle esq. The principal landowners are S. S. Palmer-Samborne esq. William Rees Mogg esq. Mrs. Bartholomew Smith and P. B. Poole esq. The soil is a rich loam; subsoil, white lias. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley, and about three-fourths of pasture. The area is 1,148 acres; rateable value, £5,190; and the population in 1891 was 1,390.

Parish Clerk and Sexton, James Newth.

The parish is currently part of the benefice of Timsbury with Priston, Camerton and Dunkerton within the Diocese of Bath and Wells.

The ancient church measured 40' x 32' (12m. x 10m.), having fallen into disrepair, was pulled down in 1826 and rebuilt in the Gothic style. Some memorials to the Samborne family that were in the old church survive. To the nave and chancel were added, in 1852, side aisles and galleries were removed. A western gallery survives.

From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 12 Jun 1834 p3:

In the House of Commons on Monday . . . Mr. Hall presented a petition from Timsbury (Somersetshire), against the admission of Dissenters into the Universities.

(Students had to swear to the 39 Articles of Religion of the Anglican church - at Oxford on matriculation (admission) and, at Cambridge, before being awarded a degree. These restrictions were removed a couple of decades later.)

From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 8 Jan 1835 p3:

TIMSBURY.—A correspondent informs us that "on New Year's Day, the celebrated Timsbury ringers held their 20th anniversary meeting at the New Inn, when an excellent dinner was served up by the landlord Mr. Nuth. The chair was taken precisely at seven o'clock by Mr. J. N. Binnigre. After the removal of the cloth, a few favourite airs and a complete set of cators, were run in good style. The whole company then joined in the chorus of 'God save the King;' and with three cheers for the King and Constitution, they departed, highly gratified by their evening's entertainment."

From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 15 Aug 1839 p3:

The Rev, C. T. Collins Trelawney, of Tisbury, has addressed an excellent letter to the Colliers of that parish and neighbourhood, on the subject of the Chartist delusions.

(The six parliamentary reforms demanded by the People's Charter of 1838 led to some agitation in the North Somerset coalfields. The Bath Chronicle of Thu 11 Apr 1839 p2 reported on the magistrates receiving information on "Chartist agitators who, for some weeks past, have been endeavouring to inflame, by their seditious harangues, the minds of the peaceable inhabitants of the coaling district". The yeomanry were deployed to Radstock in advance of a proposed (and subsequently postponed) Chartist meeting and demonstration. For a Chartist demonstration at Bath in May 1839 "The Police Force, which had been considerably augmented, and armed with cutlasses, was kept in readiness near the Police Office. These preparations were not without a beneficial effect." Of the six reforms demanded by the Chartists, five have been enacted.)

From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 2 Nov 1843 p3:

On Saturday last, as a man was at work blasting with gunpowder in the Grove Coal-pit, Tisbury, the train exploded before he had time to withdraw to a sufficient distance to escape danger, in consequence of which he sustained dreadful injuries, both his eyes having been blown out, and other parts of his body mangled, so that, if not dead, he is not expected to live.

From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 6 Feb 1845 p3:

On Tuesday morning, information reached the city that an occurrence of a most calamitous description had taken place at Hayeswood Coal Works, belonging to Messrs. S. S. P. Samborne and Co., in the parish of Tisbury, about seven miles from Bath, the result of which, it is to be feared, has involved the lives of eleven individuals who were working in the mines at the time when the lamentable accident took place.

The press report gives a vivid description of the flooding of the mine and the escape of some of the miners. The day shift affected had about 100 miners working at a depth of about 990 feet (300m). The burial register notes against three entries for 1845 'drowned in the Hayeswood coal pit', the bodies having been recovered six months later in October.

From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 24 Jun 1851 p4:

The parish church of Tisbury is being enlarged with new chancel and transepts, and on Tuesday, the 12th, after divine service, which the builder, Mr. Brown, and his men attended, the foundation stone was laid by the rector, the Rev. R. Hill, several of the clergy, gentry, and ladies of the place, and the school children of the National School being present. The rev. gentleman, after performing the ceremony, delivered a suitable address, in which he spoke very highly of the skill of the architect, G. G. Scott, Esq., Spring Gardens, London, and also of the builder, Mr. Brown, of Frome, and his workmen. . . .

From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 21 Oct 1852 p4:

CONSECRATION OF TISBURY CHURCH.— The parish church of Tisbury, having been enlarged by the erection of a chancel and transepts, was consecrated on Wednesday, the 15th inst., by the Right Rev. George Trevor Spencer, D.D., late Lord Bishop of Madras, who officiated for the Lord Bishop of the Diocese. The proceedings of the day were announced by merry peals from the church tower. The children of the national school, and the principal inhabitants of the parish assembled at the Rectory at half-past ten, and walked in procession with the Bishop and Clergy to the church, where a large congregation, including a large number of strangers from many miles around, had assembled. The ceremony of consecration and the morning prayers having been performed, the Bishop delivered a very suitable discourse, taking his text from Ephesians, 4th chapter, from the 1st to the 6th verse. The Holy Communion followed. Divine service was again performed in the evening, and a sermon was preached. At three o'clock in the afternoon the children of the National School were regaled with plum cake, and a barrel of cider, kindly provided by the Rev. R. Hill. The Rector of the parish; and the teachers of the school, the men-singers of the church choir, and old inhabitants of the village who are communicants of the church, sat down to an excellent dinner of roast beef and plum pudding. At four o'clock, Mr. Brown, the builder, and his men, together with the church ringers, and men working upon the roads, also partook of an excellent dinner, at the New Inn, at the expense of the rev. gentleman. Great praise is due to the host for the excellent manner in which it was served up. At eight o'clock in the evening, the rev. gentleman also gave a supper at the Rectory, to some others of his parishioners, and all who were concerned in the alteration of the church. The rev. gentleman's health was drunk most cordially, and amidst loud cheers, and many a hearty wish was offered that he may live long and happily. The Bishop, Clergy, and others were kindly entertained by B. Smith, Esq., and the proceedings passed off in a very satisfactory manner. The church has been erected according to the design of the architect, G. G. Scott, Esq., Spring Gardens, London, and is a very handsome structure. At the east side of the aisle are two beautiful screens, carved with various designs, and made of white lias stone, dug from a field belonging to the Rev. R. Hill, Rector of the parish. The east window bears the heads of St. Mary and

St. John. The pulpit is made of white lias stone, rising out of a corbel of vine leaves; it is formed in tracery panels; the cove of the cornice is beautifully decorated with the rose, maple, holly, ivy, and hawthorn leaves, and patreas of different designs, and the corbels supporting the roof are highly finished with splendid patreas. The Bishop's chair and the altar rail are of a rich design, beautifully decorated with carved foliage suitable to the designs of the chancel. The whole of the carving was executed by Mr. W. Jones, Camden Town, London. On the exterior of the windows are heads of different persons, and there are cargoils over the buttresses on the angles of the church, carved in a very spirited style as though forcing themselves out of the wall. The floor is tessellated. The cushion and communion cloth are made of beautiful silk velvet, trimmed with gold fringe, presented by Mrs. Smith, the lady of B. Smith, Esq., one of the Churchwardens of the parish. The building work has been substantially performed by Mr. Brown, of Frome.

A 'patrea' is stylised floral design usually a circular carving with petals emanating from the centre. 'Cargoil' presumably should be 'gargoyle'. For the restoration the architect was Sir George Gilbert Scott (1811-1878).

(The following article reports a petition from the Bath Church of England Lay Association to the Queen objecting to the state financing the Catholic college at Maynooth in Ireland as 'the virtual encouragement of Popery' and 'the baneful nursery of a system which recent events (as seen more particularly in the late general election) have plainly proved to be fast tending to disloyalty towards the Throne, insult towards the Sovereign...')

From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 2 Mar 1851 p3:

On Monday night, Capt. Scobell presented to the House of Commons a petition, signed by 1,942 persons, members of Broad Street Wesleyan Chapel, Bath, the members of Ebenezer Chapel, Bath, members of Bridewell Chapel, and the inhabitants of the parish of Timsbury and vicinity, against the sale of intoxicating liquors on Sundays.

The Shepton Mallet Journal of Fri 2-Jul-1886 p4 noted in its summary of news 'Timsbury Church is being restored' and the Bristol Mercury of Sat 19-Jun-1886 carried an advertisement for the sale of 'all the seating, framing, floors, joints, beams &c. (over 300 feet super) removed from Timsbury church'.

As with other villages in the area, a significant proportion of the workers worked in the coal mines. On the 6 Feb 1895 five parishioners lost their lives in a mining accident - an explosion at the Conygre colliery - and their funeral at Timsbury church was reported in the Shepton Mallet Journal of Fri 15 Feb 1895 p8. All the employees of the Upper and Lower Conygre pits met at the Temperance Hall and then processed to the churchyard. The committal was performed by the rector and Rev C W Shickle (Bath), 'one of the colliery proprietors' and among those attending the funeral were 'Messrs. Woolrich, Rees-Mogg, and S.S.P. Samborne, with Mrs Samborne, representing the colliery company, the under manager, bailiffs, and many parishioners.'

The Miners Memorial Garden, off the south-eastern corner of The Square, was in built in 1995 to mark the centenary of the underground explosion at Upper Conygre pit. It does not refer to the event but has 'TIMSBURY/ remembers with honour/ the men of this parish/ who lost their lives in the mines/ and all those who worked in/ the local coal industry'.

Plot D.3.12 is the burial location (without a memorial) for three individuals who died in April 1942, which the burial register has 'killed by enemy action;'. Two of them had abodes of '33 Kingsmead St, Bath'. This would be a reference to the Bath Blitz with bombing raids on 25, 26 and 27 Apr 1942. They were all victims of the first raid.

Timsbury Cemetery entrance

The Bath Chronicle of Thu 13 Apr 1899 p8 carried a brief report that 'At Timsbury, a new churchyard has been consecrated.' The burial register has its first reference to a new burial ground in a burial on 20-Jan-1899. The cemetery is in two parts, an old section to the north which is referred to in the register as the 'old part of new cemetery' and a newer extension dating from 1936 consisting of 20 rows each containing about 30 plots. Along the western border are groups of cremation plaques.

Previous Surveys

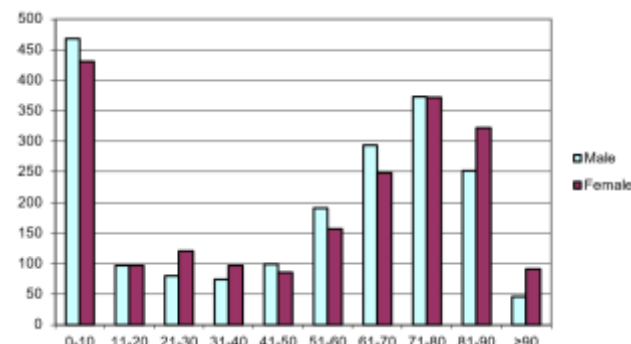

The parish has two paper copies of surveys that have been carried out on the old churchyard. The first, undated, has handwritten transcriptions of the inscriptions which show the general layouts of the inscriptions. The second from 2003, by Miriam Hare, has typescript transcriptions of the inscriptions, although these do not reproduce the actual layout of the text. They both use the same numbering scheme which divides the old churchyard into a series of numbered areas.

Text from these surveys for memprials which have not been found in the current survey is given here in grey.

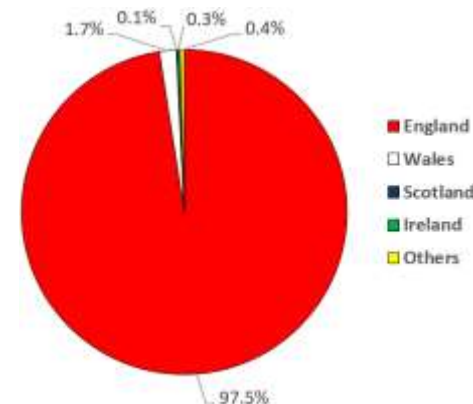

Occupants:

The occupations have been determined for just over 300 of those buried and shows the large percentage (70%) of those who were either working in the coal mines in one capacity or another or were labourers.

The age profile by decade has 22% aged under 11 and 36% aged over 70.

The birth country has been determined for just over 1,200 of those buried. As would be expected for a rural community, the vast majority were born in England.

England	1,185	97.5%
Wales	21	1.7%
Scotland	1	0.1%
Ireland	3	0.3%
Others	5	0.4%

23% of those buried have their names on memorials, in line with other burial grounds in the area.

D/P/tims 2/1/12 Burials 1846-1872

D/P/tims 2/1/15 Burials 1872-1904

The registers for 1904-1948 and 1948-1992 and 1993- are with the parish.

The parish also has:

- Grave indexes (two for Section D of the cemetery and one for the churchyard)
- A typed transcript of historical registers by the Rev C W Shickle
- A schematic map of the churchyard (not to scale)
- A map of the old part of the cemetery giving a numbering scheme
- A map of the new part of the cemetery showing the arrangement of plots and their numbers
- A typed page of history of the church

In the register for the period 1741-1797 burials start in 1770 intermixed with baptisms. This is followed by many pages solely of baptisms before a contiguous list of burials from 1741. After the entry for 23 Apr 1770 is 'Look back to baptisms where there are entries of burials also in ye years 1770 & 1771'. In the mid-1700s until about 1780 the parish name is given as 'Timsborough'.

Numbering scheme

The numbering scheme is based on the grave numbers from previous surveys and those given in the registers.

The sections have been given letters A-E with:

- A the churchyard
- B the northern part of the new cemetery's old part
- C the southern part of the new cemetery's old part
- D the new section of the cemetery from 1936
- E cremation plots in the cemetery
- Y cremation plots in the churchyard
- Z Garden of Remembrance in the cemetery

Section A has 9 areas on the church's map with surviving memorials assigned arbitrary numbers within each area. These numbers have been retained to avoid confusion. The arrangement of cremation memorials from about 1990 has been assigned a separate section according with the row and plot scheme used in the register (see below).

Sections B and C have plot numbering schemes based on the church's map which has row numbers and plot numbers within each row. The registers themselves are non-specific about locations and the numbers are sequential based on surviving memorials. It should be noted that first five rows, at the eastern end, are considered as part of Section B, whereas from row 6 upwards have some in Section B and others in Section C.

The registers indicate some burials as 'old part of the new cemetery'. This could be either section B or C. In the absence of a memorial it is not possible to determine which and these are indicated in the index as 'B.?.?'.

There is a reference to a burial in 1946 as being 'in the children's part' but the location of this is unspecified.

Section D is laid out in a grid and the row and plot numbers are specified, for the most part, in the registers. Missing ones have been added from the survey. Rows 7 and 10 are grass paths. Nonetheless the registers indicate some burials in row 7 but the memorials were actually found in row 8, possibly because row 8 is actually the seventh one on use.

In the registers for 1904-1992 the grave positions for this section of the cemetery are expressed as a row number and a plot letter, this as an annotation in the margin. The plot letters run from A to Z then, as there are more than 26 plots in a row, α, β, γ, δ, ε and ζ. However, the grave registers and the corresponding map uses a row number followed by a plot number. In the index, the numeric plot numbers are used with the letter version in the register given between brackets in the Notes section.

Section E is for cremation plaques in the cemetery and the parish's notes have it that each plot is 2' x 2' with a 9" gap. From the annotations in the registers the three distinct groups are considered as being a single group with row numbers (number 1 by the wall) and within these, plot numbers, with 1 being at the northern end (except for row 10 which is between rows 4 and 5 and for which plot 1 is at the southern end). Reconciling the names on the memorials with the burial registers suggests that, during the 1990s, various names were omitted from the register.

The cremation plaques in the southern part of the churchyard are in two rows. It is not possible to fit this into a scheme based on Section A's for the churchyard as the grave index numbers the rows as 1 and 2 and then within these, a sequential number. As a result the section is designated Section Y followed by row and plot numbers.

Various anomalies have been found by reconciling grave indexes with the results of the survey. For example one grave index has at D.1.9 Miss Willenton and from the dates for nearby graves would be expected to date from about 1936; this is been matched with Mary Elizabeth Willington. Another grave index (possibly later) has Mr W Sims at this location. D.1.28 in the grave index has 'G Fear' and there is a memorial there to George Nokes Fear (1861-1938) and Elizabeth Fear (1861-1951) but no entry in the burial register for the former. The grave index has ashes for Mrs Blacker Feb 1976, Mrs Peplow 24/11/89 and Arthur

22		 Royal coat of arms with, in the centre, another shield with two lions or on red, a lion blue and a white horse on a red background (an inescutcheon surmounted by a crown). This is the version of the royal coat of arms of the Hanoverian kings of Britain used from 1816 to 1837 which differs from the previous version (1801-1816) in that the (elector's) bonnet has been replaced by a crown. The link with Hanover stopped on the ascension to the throne of Queen Victoria in 1837 as the Kingdom of Hanover did not recognise female succession.
