Introduction

The church of St Mary the Virgin

The church is within the Orchardleigh estate on the edge of a lake and surrounded by a moat. It is part of the Beckington Benefice which comprises the parishes of Beckington, Berkley, Rodden, Lullington and Orchardleigh.

The church was built in the 13th century and was restored by Sir George Gilbert Scott for the Rev William Arthur Duckworth in 1878, whose family held the estate in the period 1855-1986. It has since been designated a Grade I listed building.

The church has retained its sculptures and stained glass from the 14th and 15th centuries. Around 1800 Thomas Champneys of the Mostyn-Champneys Baronets who owned the estate had a moat dug around the church. From the Bath Chronicle of Thu 7 Sep 1797 p3: "We are now assured, that the Ancestors of Sir Thomas Champney have been resident at Orchardleigh, in this county, ever since the reign of Henry II. In the year 1156, Sir Amlan Champney, knt. paid a fine for the Manor of Orchardlei. The family came in with William the Conqueror, as appears by the Roll of Battle Abbey."

From the Western Gazette of Fri 16 Dec 1870 p6:

The rectory of Orchardleigh, near Frome, value £148 per annum, population 32, has become vacant by the death of the Rev. W. M. H. Williams, who was instituted in 1839, and who also held the vicarage of Lullington, value £104 and a house, population 118, since 1848. . . .

From the Western Daily Press of Mon 30 Sep 1878 p6:

INTERESTING DISCOVERY.—During the progress of the restoration now being carried on at Orchardleigh church by the Rev. W. A. Duckworth, a 13th century pewter chalice of very low form was found. The chalice is of the kind formerly placed in the coffin where a priest was interred, and was mist probably the chalice belonging to the founder of the church. It was double up, from the fact that the coffin had been smashed, but has been restored by Messrs Singer and Sons, of Frome, and is now in the possession of the Rev. J. B. Medley.

From the Western Daily Press of Thu 30 Dec 1926 p5:

Complimentary references to notable places or objects in this part of the country are always welcome, particularly in the localities dealt with. This week's 'Truth' contains interesting mention of the combined rectories of Orchardleigh and Lullington, near Frome, to which the Rev. H. V. Johnson has been presented by Major. A. C.

Duckworth. "Orchardleigh Church," it states, "is romantically situated on an island in a large lake in Major Duckworth's unusually spacious and beautiful park. It is a little late 13th century building, which has preserved much of its fine old glass and many other delightful details. . . . Orchardleigh parish consists mainly of Major Duckworth's park, and if anywhere it is always afternoon it much surely be in these two villages, as comely as their names."

From the Taunton Courier of Wed 29 Aug 1934 p10 in a description of Orchardleigh and its church:

"The attractive mansion of the owner, Major Duckworth, overlooks one portion of the lake, and at the further end, not far from the house, situated on an island, will be found Orchardleigh Church, surely a unique site for a house of prayer. The small structure is a gem in its way, containing a carved sup-shaped font, a beautifully decorated priest's doorway, an elaborately sculptured aumbury and piscina. Of special interest, however, are the small projecting figures on the north and south walls of the sanctuary, the hand of the one on the south is seen still grasping the staple on which was once suspended the Lenten veil."

Orchardleigh - Memorial Inscriptions

In the burial register for the period 1625-2002 there are 144 entries. The majority of these were for members of the families owning Orchardleigh House (Champneys and Duckworths) and for those working for the family in the house or on the estate and some tenant farmers in the area.

		Square column surmounted by a sculptured urn. From The Original Bath Guide (published by Meyler & Son, Bath) p158 in a section on Orchardleigh: The drive continues through the Park and Ground towards Frome, and on the summit of the hill, about a quarter of a mile from the road, stands the far-famed cottage ornée, called the WOOD LODGE, embossed in wood and sequestered in a beautiful flower garden, in the centre of which stands an urn, dedicated to a favourite Poodle Dog, presented at Berlin to Sir T. S. M. Champneys, by the deceased King Frederick of Prussia. On a pedestal beneath are inscribed the following lines: To the Memory of Azor, A Prussian by birth, and for many years the constant Companion and Fellow-Traveller of the owner of this Place. He died April 15, 1797. Adieu! Most faithful of a faithful kind; Though void of reason, and denied a mine, How many a two-legged animal we see, Who boast of both, and yet may copy thee! Thy sense so prompt to catch the tricks of art, Thy cheerful manners and thy gentle heart, Their charms in memory so strongly blend, I "better could have spared a better friend." Could matchless worth prolong a mortal date, This stone would ne'er have told thy mournful fate. But sad experience bids me sigh and say, Azor, like thee, "Each dog must have his day." The story is that the dog is supposed to have saved his master from drowning and when he was dying Sir Thomas asked that the dog be buried with him. However, the Bishop of Bath and Wells heard about it and furiously instructed the parson to get the animal moved out of consecrated ground. The dog was supposedly exhumed and reburied under the monumental urn in an adjacent field. When restoration work was carried out in the church in 1980s the dog's skeleton was found still at Champney's feet. The parish was granted a faculty to leave it there and to move the monument back into the churchyard.
