Introduction

The church of St Andrew, Chew Stoke

From the Frome Times of Wed 17 Jun 1863 p2:

CHEW STOKE CHURCH is fast approaching completion, and is one of Mr. Norton's best works. The fund, however, are still, it is said, more than a thousand pounds deficient.

From the Bristol Times and Felix Farley's Bristol Journal of Wed 8 Aug 1863 p8:

The re-opening of Chew-Stoke Church is fixed for August 11. There is a deficiency of £700 to be made up. Sir Penny and Lackpenny may help each in his own way. Rich and poor are interested in the work.

From the Frome Times of Wed 19 Aug 1863 p3:

RE-OPENING OF CHEW STOKE CHURCH.—On Tuesday the inhabitants of the pretty village of Chew Stoke were early astir for the purpose of making preparations for the service which were to be held in their neat and attractive parish church consequent upon the work of restoration of the venerable structure having been brought to a successful termination. In the morning the sacred building was densely crowded. A large muster of clergy met at the rectory where they robed, and walked in procession to the church, entering at the west door. There the school children were marshalled and formed into two ranks, and as the clergy passed by they chanted the 122nd and 134th Psalms. Amongst the clergy present were the Right Rev. Lord Auckland, Bishop of Bath and Wells; the Ven. Archdeacon Browne, Weston-super-Mare; Rev. Prebendary Ommanney, Rural Dean, Chew Magna; Rev. Prebendary Milward, Paulton, &c. The Bishop preached in the morning, and, referring to the financial features of the work, his lordship said the expenditure amounted to £2429, of which £1000 had been subscribed by the Rector; £160 had been given by the Church laymen; and the societies had given, the London £50, and the Diocesan £60; but he was sorry to add that in spite of those donations a debt of £700 had been incurred, to diminish which their contributions would be applied. The offertory was taken at the close of the service, and £36 8s. 6d. received. The service was followed by a collation, after which service was again held in the church, when Archdeacon Browne preached, and in the evening tea was provided for a large number of friends. We may state, in addition, that Mr. Crook presided at the organ, improved by Mr. Vowles, of Bristol; and the usual village choir was aided by some Bristol friends. The Bible and Church Prayer Books, for the desk and communion table, were presented by the rector's grandchildren. The decorations were arranged by Miss H. King and Mr. J. Gardiner. During the morning service, after the second lesson, the youngest grandchild of the rector was baptised by the Bishop, with water brought from the river Jordan by a well-known missionary from the East. IN connexion with the interesting ceremony, the parishioners presented the Rev. rector with a set of clerical robes.

In 1884 there was a dispute over pew no. 3 in Chew Stoke Church. Two families claimed sole rights to use it. A letter from the Bishop of Bath & Wells stated that 'no house in a parish has a right to a particular pew, unless by faculty'. The matter went to the Temple Cloud petty sessions where the magistrates imposed a fine of £2 10s with £2 8s 6d costs on the main defendants who had been accused of 'indecent behaviour' by climbing over the back of pews to gain access to the pew denied to them. There was a threat of 2 months in gaol if the fine were not paid and that, should there be a reoccurrence, the penalty would be gaol and not a fine. (Western Daily Press Wed 5 Nov 1884 p7, Bristol Mercury Wed 5 Nov 1884 p3). The issue arose again in 1889 with an alleged assault by the previous defendants on the son of the Rector of Chew Stoke. The case 'has excited a great deal of interest in the neighbourhood, this being evident from the crowded attendance at the court house (Bristol Mercury Sat Sep 1889 p19).

From the Taunton Courier of Wed 10 Sep 1913 p8:

2439. THE BEARDED LADY.—Up to the present eve the most mannish woman has not succeeded in growing a beard but we are told that when someone ventured to propose to St. Wilgefort, to whom one of the altars in Chew Stoke Church was dedicated, she resented it so hairily that she grew a beard to prevent anyone else repeating the offence, "and as a bearded lady she is always represented." She also has an altar at St Mary-le-

Port, Bristol. Some of our Suffragette friends would doubtless like to know more about this forgotten saint. When did she live, and has her "life" even been written?

(The legend of St Wilgefortis is supposed to have arisen in the 14th century. The feast-day is 20 July. There were a couple of replies concerning her in the Taunton Courier of Wed 23 May 1928 p12.)

From The Western Daily Press of Thu 4 May 1922 p3 in an article on H F Grant of Chew Stoke and his white daffodils:

Some day some one will write a history of our parish, and a wonderful parish it is. 'Lawks, did we not give to the world its finest and sweetest bells? There's none comparable with the musical olanged tongues of Bilbie. For fear that they might melt the metal too long they made clocks that still showed Old Father Time exact to the minute, long after their makers have returned to Mother Earth. Abraham, Thomas, Edward Bilbie—does not the mould of them still lie undisturbed beside the foot of Chew Stoke Church tower? And then old Bryant came along and struck, not his love match, but a Lucifer, and was so much pleased with it that he founded his first match factory there, and Curtis, not to be outdone, put up a gunpowder mill at t'other end o' the parish. And didn't old Webb grind up bacca stems and make snuff, and made a vortune and leave some of it for charity, even until this day, long afore Bristol Bird's Eye wur thawt of?

I can tell you our's just be a famous parish 'cause we bred brains, and if we didn't breed them, why, of course, they just came to use and became absorbed in the natural modesty of the place. We do not seek advertisement at Chew Stoke, only to live out our days and sleep our nights, and they do zay as we have gone a long way towards this, because the Inland Revenue do say that there are more old-age pensioners in Chew Stoke according to its area and population than any other parish in the kingdom. The senior od just cost into her 102nd birthday, and sturdily maintains that she is not finished yet, and to see Benny Crocker's garden testified how well a man can retain his muscle at well over 99.

From the Somerset County Herald & Taunton Courier of Sat 19 Jan 1946 p2:

In the Bristol Evening World for Friday January 11th, "Old Plough" told the following interesting story:

When Chew Stoke Church was being restored and partially rebuilt about a century back, the work was being done by a local contractor.

The inside of this church is profusely decorated with angel heads and wings carved in wood and stone. Now that contractor was at times a bit slow in paying out the wages, and one week-end there was to be a bit of a spree in the neighbourhood to which the workmen desired to go. But the contractor did not turn up with the wages.

While waiting, one of the sculptors continued with one of these angel heads, which he produced as a perfect likeness of the contractor and then he proceeded to cover that face with small pock-marks. For many years it so remained!

Occupants

About 39% of those buried were aged under 11 and 19% aged over 70.

Numbers by age band

Typically for a rural community the birth country is overwhelmingly England.
